

Trustee Recruitment Pack

November 2023

This pack has been put together for those interested in the work of Cambridge Curiosity and Imagination with are considering becoming a trustee of the charity.

The pack contains the following sections:

1. Introduction to Cambridge Curiosity and Imagination
2. How our trustees support us
3. Our current structure (governance and management)
4. General role description for a Trustee
5. Person Specification for new trustees for CCI
6. Expression of interest form

We are seeking to strengthen our Board with additional trustees, who are interested in taking an active role to support the growth of this innovative charity. We're looking for people who have a keen interest in supporting individuals and communities through creative expression. In particular, we are seeking people with experience/expertise in the areas of health care, and marketing. If you don't have skills in either of these areas but are passionate about wanting to actively support CCI and believe that your experience or expertise could be useful to the charity's board, please do get in touch – we'd love to hear from you.

For an informal conversation, please contact:

1. Introduction to Cambridge Curiosity and Imagination

Cambridge Curiosity and Imagination \(CCI\) is a highly regarded charity based in the East of England. It is led by a small core team of highly-skilled creative professionals and a Board of Trustees, who work closely with an inspirational and respected group of CCI artists and creative practitioners. We celebrated our 15th Birthday as a registered charity in 2022.

CCI's unique approach enables us to involve extremely diverse audiences in creative experiences. We are passionate about supporting people to explore and express their own ideas and fascinations through creative processes. Children are at the heart of our work.

“As the world struggles with a climate emergency, a Covid crisis, and a racial injustice crisis, there can be no better time to imagine how things could be different. Cambridge Curiosity and Imagination is an inspiring example, showing that learning and teaching can be re-imagined and that the next generation is not bound to repeat the mistakes of the past.”

Daniel Zeichner MP, 2021

CCI has extensive experience of working in partnership with the public, private and voluntary sectors and with people of all ages and from all backgrounds in diverse settings (eg galleries, museums, woodlands, hospitals, Universities and Further Education colleges, schools, nurseries, groups with special educational needs, with property developers and even our local waste management centre).

We are particularly skilled at working with groups often classified in research as ‘culture-starved’, building sustainable relationships and new connections with our partners.

“Sometimes I think of what CCI does as a kind of ‘practical dreaming’: imagining new and fantastical ways of being in the world which root deep in minds and imaginations, and from there grow into reality. Every one of its projects makes me see things strangely again, tips a little more wonder back into the world.

Truly, this is the work. Lives are changed by it.”

Robert Macfarlane, writer and CCI Patron, November 2021

Despite its compact size, and with no core funding, the organisation has strong relationships with many and varied partners and communities, from Cambridge Past Present and Future to Norfolk and Norwich Festival Bridge, from Cambridgeshire County Council to Addenbrooke's Hospital, from University of Cambridge Museums to the Institute of Education at University College London. CCI was a founding member of the Fullscope consortia, seven voluntary sector organisations working in partnership to create a more equitable, relevant and inclusive mental health and well-being system for children and young people and those who care for them. As a charity, we have exemplary governance, financial systems, staff and associates. Last year, we won social enterprise of the year at the Cambridgeshire Live Business Awards. We are trusted by artists, educational organisations, academic institutions and, most importantly, by the communities with whom we work.

Our work focuses on developing each community we engage with by connecting them with ideas, objects or spaces and helping them to open their eyes to new ways of being and engaging with their world. Our cultural, social and education projects are designed and delivered to respond to the particular needs of each community we work with. Projects are developed around transforming a community's confidence and skills, enabling them to approach their particular challenges more creatively.

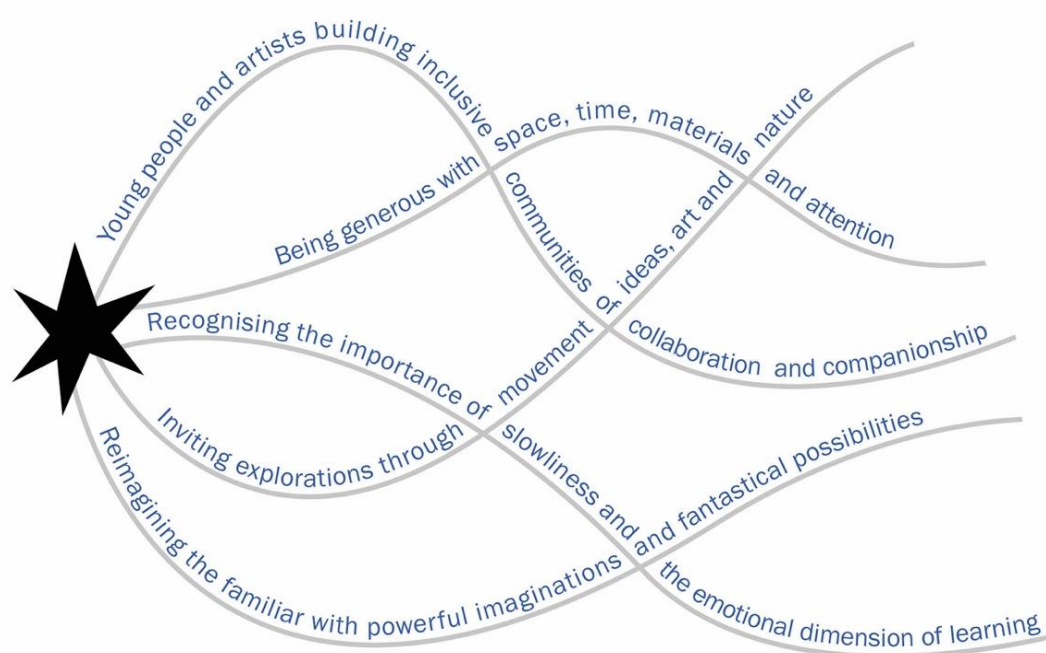

2. How our trustees support the charity

Our current trustees have backgrounds in education, contemporary arts practice, higher education, the civil service, business, and arts and health. In accordance with the rules of the Charity Commission, trustees give their time on a voluntary basis.

Trustees have a key role in overseeing the charity. A trustee of CCI is a member and director of the limited company. There are normally four Board meetings every year. There are also informal monthly meetings for trustees to share practice and learn, often with partner organisations and artists who work with the charity.

In addition, each trustee also supports the charity in a way related to their own background, interests and expertise. Trustees are invited to events and their support is welcome in between Board meetings.

Inclusion is at the heart of our organisation, and we are keen to achieve a more diverse board of Trustees that will better reflect the diverse communities we serve.

Our current trustees are:

- Fiona Brice, Funding Officer, National Lottery community fund
- Michael Corley, CEO, Babylon Arts
- Emily Dowdeswell, doctoral researcher, Open University
- Owen Garling, Knowledge Transfer Facilitator, Bennett Institute for Public Policy
- Zoe Gilbertson, designer & regenerative practitioner
- Karin Horowitz, leadership and well-being consultant
- Richard McLean, Vice-President, Elsevier (Chair)
- Karen Thomas, Community Manager, Kettle's Yard Gallery and Museum

We also have a number of critical friends, who support particular areas of our work, including:

- Professor Nicola Walshe, co-founder and Executive Director of ULC Centre for Climate Change and Sustainability Education, & Pro-Director of Education at UCL's Faculty of Education and Society
- Dr Esther Sayers, Head of MA Artist Teacher, Goldsmiths University

The charity has two patrons:

- Michael Morpurgo, children's writer and
- Robert Macfarlane, writer and Fellow of Emmanuel College, Cambridge.

3. Our current Structure (governance and management)

CCI is a company limited by guarantee (registered in England no. 06301716) and a charity (registered Charity no. 1126253).

As well as the Board of trustees, mentioned above, there are currently 3 self-employed staff who work on a regular basis for the organisation. They are responsible for their own tax, National Insurance, and professional indemnity:

- Ruth Sapsed is CCI's Director and works for approximately 3 days per week for the charity.
- Neil Parker is the Office Manager and works 1 a day per week, with extra days as required.
- Jo Diver is the Financial Controller, supporting CCI for a day per month.

In order to maintain costs at a minimal level, CCI has no office space.

4. General Role Description for a Trustee

Trustees have the following general responsibilities:

- Strategy – defining and approving our Mission and Values, the Aims and Objectives arising from these, and taking appropriate policy decisions to take them forward
- Stewardship –responsibility for the charity’s assets, and assessing risks
- Monitoring – overseeing the effective management of CCI and its service delivery, selecting and supporting the Director,
- Promotion and advocacy – eg to external clients/partners/stakeholders
- Governance – ensuring that trustee business is effectively conducted in line with Charity Commission guidelines.

There is a further expectation that trustees:

- ensure the organisation complies with the law and Charity Commission requirements
- know, understand and support our mission, goals, policies, programmes, services, strengths, and needs
- support the majority decision on issues decided by the Board
- avoid conflicts of interest, and disclose any possible conflicts to the Board in good time
- avoid pursuance of personal agenda through membership of the Board or inappropriate relationships with staff
- attend and fully participate in meetings and prepare for them, including reading in advance the papers submitted
- advise and support the Chair and Director on matters relating to CCI on the basis of their personal expertise and knowledge
- maintain independence and objectivity,
- act with a sense of fairness, and personal integrity
- maintain the confidentiality of details of CCI’s business and of its Board's meetings
- show appropriate respect to other trustees, staff, volunteers and users of CCI

The Charity Commission offers the following guidance about Trustees’ responsibilities:

Charity trustees are the people who serve on the governing body of a charity. They may be known as trustees, directors, board members, governors or committee members. The principles and main duties are the same in all cases.

1. Trustees have and must accept ultimate responsibility for directing the affairs of a charity, and ensuring that it is solvent, well-run, and delivering the charitable outcomes for the benefit of the public for which it has been set up.

Compliance - Trustees must:

2. Ensure that the charity complies with charity law, and with the requirements of the Charity Commission as regulator; in particular ensure that the charity prepares reports on what it has achieved and Annual Returns and accounts as required by law.
3. Ensure that the charity does not breach any of the requirements or rules set out in its governing document and that it remains true to the charitable purpose and objects set out there.
4. Comply with the requirements of other legislation and other regulators (if any) which govern the activities of the charity.
5. Act with integrity and avoid any personal conflicts of interest or misuse of charity funds or assets.

Duty of prudence - Trustees must:

6. Ensure that the charity is and will remain solvent.
7. Use charitable funds and assets reasonably, and only in furtherance of the charity's objects.
8. Avoid undertaking activities that might place the charity's endowment, funds, assets or reputation at undue risk.
9. Take special care when investing the funds of the charity, or borrowing funds for the charity to use.

Duty of care - Trustees must:

10. Use reasonable care and skill in their work as trustees, using their personal skills and experience as needed to ensure that the charity is well-run and efficient.
11. Consider getting external professional advice on all matters where there may be material risk to the charity, or where the trustees may be in breach of their duties.

More information on the responsibilities of a trustee can be found at:

5. Person specification for new CCI trustees

We are seeking to strengthen our Board with additional trustees. In particular, we're looking for people who want to take an active role in supporting the charity. Ideally, new trustees will have experience and/or skills in one of the following areas:

Health Care

- Experience of developing innovative solutions in the health and social care system
- Experience of scaling operations to reach more communities

Marketing

- Experience of developing and building a profile for an organisation amongst key target audiences
- Experience of various promotional media relevant to CCI's work

If you don't have skills in these areas but are passionate about wanting to actively support CCI and believe that your experience or expertise could be useful to the charity, please do get in touch.
